HENDERSON-TARIFF AGITATION NOT PROB-ABLE-THE NEW REPUBLICAN MEMBERS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Washington, March 16.-In the course of a con-versation with a Tribune correspondent to-day in regard to the political complexion of the LIVth Congard to the political complexion of the LIVth Congress, ex-Speaker Reed said:

Before the expiration of the last Congress I had an opportunity to make the acquaintance of most, if not all, of the new Republican Representatives-elect to the next Congress, and, as a tile, they impressed me very favorably, indeed. They seemed to be men of excellent ability, high intelligence and good judgment, who were animated by a single standard and at the same time practicable for the welfare and interests of the countrymen who appeared to understand and appreciate not only their future responsibilities, but the limitations which circumstances will impose upon their action.

Mr. Reed then spoke with considerable freedom revenues—a contingency not likely to happen so far as the Administration is concerned. Mr. Reed ex-pressed the hope that the Republican majority in the House of Representatives would not enter upon a hopeless attempt to revise the tariff—an attempt made by the Democratic majority in the House in the Lilld Congress with consequences so disastrous to the party which demanded it and so detri-mental to the business interests of the country. It was apparent from the tone and tenor of his re-marks that Mr. Reed did not believe that the Republican majority in the House ought to, or would, enter upon a crusade which everybody would know to be absolutely hopeless, in view of the stubborn attitude of President Cleveland, who no longer ago than last December, when the Secretary of the Statesman, whose constituents Treasury was compelled to resort to borrowing to voted last November to retire him that he was still "very decidedly in favor of putting coal and iron on the free list," as well as of "such necessary amendments as will change rates of

be among the leaders in the House of Representa-tives. For example, Colonel Henderson, of Iowa. who was at the head of the Republican minority of the Committee on Appropriations in the last Congress, said:

I do not see how it is possible for the tariff to come up in the next Congress, knowing, as we all do, that the President holds views diametrically opposed to those of the Republican party. The rountry will have to content itself with existing egislation until the people can express themselves again in 1896. When the time comes to grapple with the question, if the Republican party is in control of this Government. I entertain no doubt but that the policy of protection will be adhered to on wise and conservative lines. The East will desire the continuance of that policy no more mistaken idea than that there is a growth of free-trade sentiment in the West. It is not true. All the bad effects of the free-trade legislation of the last Congress have been feit in the West quite as much as in the East. The fine is that legislation has been an educator, and the school has been a broad one, embracing the whole country.

In view of the fact that 142 of the 243 Republican Representatives-elect to the LIVth Congress were not members of the last one, and that only ten of them have had the benefit of previous experience in that body, it is reassuring to find that Colonel Henderson's estimate, based on personal observation, of the general character of the new membership, agrees with Mr. Reed's. He said:

agrees with Mr. Reedis. He said:

I met perhaps all of the new Representatives who were here during the last week of Congress, and they impressed me as being vigorous, partiotic and conscientious. In a battle all men follow their leader because the know that they cannot carry on the struggle alone. It will be the same thing, in the House. We will all work together for the interest of a common party and a common country. Of course, if one of two or three men should attempt to run the House to the exclusion of everybody else, there would be a rebellion. The new men are independent; they are fresh from the people, and they will want some voice in affairs. They ought to have it. In my opinion, the old members will not attempt autocratically to control legislation, nor will the new members desire to have everything their own way. The incomers will be met in a proper spirit, they will not be treated as total strangers, and if the my over becoked. At least, that is the sentiment of being over beard expressed by Republican lead-by the Democratic prognostications (based wholly upon Democratic experience) that the Republican majority in the incoming House will be distracted and its energies wasted by factional feuds and internal discessions, or that it will fail or refuse to meet and discharge its responsibilities in a manly and statesmanlike spirit. It is hopeful, moreover, that the condition of the revenues will improve. "With ample receipts," he said, "the drain upon the Treasury, and especially upon the gold reserve, will cease, for the gold has gone to pay the expenses of the Government. If the Treasury is easy there will be no necessity for instituting an entire overhauling of the currency system. If we have any legislation at all it will have to be something in the way of a mutual agreement, in order to re-ceive the approval of the Executive. So I say it is difficult to discuss at this time the policy of the next Congress, for present perplexing problems may by that time disappear."

Colone! Henderson is not

On one subject alone did Colone! Henderson express any uneasiness, and, as he halls from one of the leading and most important agricultural States of the Union, his views in regard to it may be of general interest. He said:

be of general interest. He said:

The great body of the Republican party believes in the use of both metals, gold and sliver, and undoubtedly the Republicans will struggle to secure legislation with that end in view, never losing eight of the more important aim of keeping all kinds of money at a parity. How far they may be able to accomplish this with European co-operation no man at this time can truthfully say. I have no doubt but that there are many in the Republican party who would be glad to drive this country to a silver basis. I am not going to question their motives, but I believe there is a powerful direct influence at work in this country, stimulated by a great and important mining interest, actively spreading ideas that would lead this country to a silver basis.

This is our great danger, and may become one of the greatest problems for the Republican party or any party to solve. While the bimetallists in the Republican party are unreserved in their expressions and fearless in their advocacy of their succeeds nearly $500,000,000 of gold will be driven from circulation, and financial disaster unequalled in this country will follow. It may require this education to convert the single silver standard advocate to real bimetallism, just as trying free trade has made this a strong protection country.

Mr. Reed then spoke with considerable freedom about the course he thought the majority in the next House of Representatives would be constrained to pursue, in view of the fact that the Administration will be politically hostile and that the Republicans will not have a working majority in the Senate. It would, of course, be impracticable to enact any tariff legislation in harmony with the General at Mexico several years ago, and more public during the last month in connection with the recently he was again "mentioned" as a candidate for the vacuory in the Mexican mission. He was owned by the Presbytery and occupied by the Senate. It would, of course, be impracticable by senate any tariff legislation in harmony with the principles of the Republican party, and it would therefore be unwise and inexpedient to agitate the subject unless the condition of the revenues should become so deplorable that even the Democratic Administration would be forced to admit the necessary for, and consent to, legislation for the relief garded by his friends as the most promising candistity for, and consent to, legislation for the relief garded by his friends as the most promising candistity for the other Indian Territory Judgeship, are sity for, and consent to, legislation for the relief of the National Treasury, by providing additional date for the other Indian Territory Judgeship, are exceedingly active, and some of them appear to feel confident that they will be able to prevent his appointment, but that is regarded as exceedingly for himself and at an annual personal outlay of appointment, but that is regarded as exceedingly doubtful, in view of the fact that he has been doubtful, in view of the fact that he has been strongly recommended by ex-Speaker Crisp. Boston, March 16.-James A. Doherty, seventeen years old, who was arrested yesterday for attempting to set fire to St. Peter's Catholic Church in Roxbury on the evening of March 6, has made a while sitting in the house that evening a feeling came over him that he must set a fire somewhere, and that a good place would be the basement of St. Peter's Church. He went to the church, where services were being held, and after sitting in a new for a few minutes, went into the basement and threw a lighted match into a box of waste paper. His only object, he says, was a desire for excitement. Donerty is an attendant of this church.

SIXIT-NINTH REGIMENT AFFAIRS.

Albany, March 16 (Special).—Adjutant-General McAlpin to-day denied the rumors as to the reorganization of the 69th Regiment. He said that the petition of the captuing together with all other documents in the case, had been forwarded to the Governor. "The papers have all been examined by the Governor," he continued, "and they will come before him again after the commander of the First Brigade has had an opportunity to pass upon them. The whole matter is to-day in the hands of General Fitzgerald, and nothing will be done by the Governor until General Fitzgerald's report is received."

ITEMS OF PERSONAL INTEREST . TO CHURCH PEOPLE.

It is not flattery to say that New-York has seldom seen the spirit displayed by the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson, the pastor of the New-York Preshyterian Church, which has been before the Church of Sea and Land. When Dr. Robinson fin-ishes his life work culcules will not be lacking from those who have known and loved him. This heroic minister, at the age of sixty-four, accepted a pastorate in Harlem of a church struggling under a morigage of $100,000 simply because the people wanted him to come and the Presbytery approved of his brains and his fingers to the Presbyterian churches of the city nearly $100,000, besides making general work of Christianity, declined to deliver a commencement oration when he was graduated from Williams College. The Fulton Street Prayer Meeting, started nearly forty years ago, has taken on new activity under the direction of Charles F. Cutter. An effort is made to have a great variety of leaders, well-known elergymen and laymen and those less widely known and experienced. While this meeting was begun by the Reformed Church, it has from the first had a deep hold upon Christians of all denominations. The Fulton Street Prayer Meeting is a good place in which to spend five minutes or an hour at noon time.

Among the numerous achievements in the Judson Memorial Church, in Washington Square, is the Berean Bible Chas, composed of young men from clafiteen to twenty-free years old. The object of the class is to study the Bible with a view to making it a rule of life and morals. A special effort is made to promote good fellowship and by simple co-operation in the affairs of life to make it easier and better for its members. There is a "class night" every fortnight, with debates upon some topic of current interest, when light refreshments are served. There is a class dettlet, a class tailor and a class photographer, who make special prices to the members of the class. The Judson Athletic Association, which makes use of the gymnasium, is organized within and under the control of this class. A summer outing for members with refuced rates of board will also be provided. The leader of this class, which meets at 2:30 p. m. on Sunday, is W. M. F. Round.

AUBREY WILL MAKE A DEFENCE.

Chicago, March 16.-J. Matt Aubrey, the son-inlaw of Chief Justice Melville W. No cross-bill will be filed, but the allegations of Mrs. Aubrey will not pass unchallenged. Manager Darling, of the American Dramatic Exchange, who is well acquainted with Aubrey, said to-day that the latter had received several offers from theatrical men to go on the stage, but could not say what the young man would do. The statement was made by Mr. Darling that Mrs. Aubres had sent loving letters to her husband within the had sent loving letters to her husband within the last two months, and that the present separa-tion was not the work of the wife alone. HE IS AT THE HEAD OF THE EXPEDITION AGAINST THE COLOMBIAN REBELS. General Rafael Reyes, who has gone with 10,000 Government troops to Cucuta, in Colombia, to re-capture the city from the rebels who came across the Venezuelan frontier and seized it, has large estates in the State of Cauca. In the Colombian rebellion of 1885 General Reyes brought with him to Panama 1,000 of the Indians from Cauca. They were little fellows who were intensely devoted to the General and would fight like demons. It made the General's hair gray trying to enforce discipline among them, but he did it to a remarkable degree the material considered. It is upon General Reyes that the Government of Colombia now largely depends to put down the present uprising. He is a man of action, swift, sharp and decisive, and so succeeds where those of his countrymen who are accustomed to rely upon "manna" fall. General Reyes was the first to explore the forests General Reyes was the first to explore the forces of Caqueta, and, striking the headwaters of the Amazon, to descend that river from Colombia. A public dinner was given for him in Para when he arrived there after his perilous journey. In the forests of Caqueta, General Reyes discovered a large area of cinchona trees which will some day lead to the opening up of all that region.
